

Andy Iles IEng MIET IPEM
IPEM Representative

Andy served an electronics engineering apprenticeship with Rediffusion working on HF TV distribution before joining the NHS in 1976. The first years were spent at Southmead Hospital working on patient monitoring and pathology equipment. In 1984 Andy took the opportunity to change specialty and moved to Bristol Haematology and Oncology Centre to work on radiotherapy equipment. He is now Radiotherapy Technical Services Manager, leading the team responsible for a range of fixed equipment, IT radiotherapy management systems and ward equipment.

Andy has been involved in professional matters over a long period starting with the Association of Medical Physics Technicians national committee. Later he became the Technologist member of the Radiotherapy Special Interest Group in the Institute of Physics and Engineering in Medicine. This was followed by the chairmanship of the Clinical Technologist Committee, along with the Clinical Technologist Education and Training Panel. At this time Andy joined the VRCT Assessors' Panel as an IPEM representative. He is now also joint Eng Tech Registrar on the IPEM Engineering Group Board.
